A BIBLIOGRAPHY OF NEPAL

This bibliography is organized into three basic parts: by AUTHOR, LANGUAGE, and TOPIC. The TOPIC section is further divided into three sections: CULTURE, HISTORY, and LINGUISTICS. GRAMMAR, ORTHOGRAPHY, PHONOLOGY-DIACHRONIC, PHONOLOGY-SYNCHRONIC, REFERENCE WORKS, TEXTS, and WORDS LISTS AND DICTIONARIES are all found under the LINGUISTICS section. The REFERENCE WORKS include the four categories of Bibliographies, Distribution of Languages, General Reference, and Surveys. The annotated works are found in the TXSIL library if not otherwise noted. The unannotated works are in various locations, and were mainly gathered from bibliographies of annotated works.

AUTHOR

Abdulky, V. J. 1974. A formational approach to the semantic structure of Nepali. A thesis presented to faculty of Cornell University. Ann Arbor, Michigan: University Microfilms.
This book applies some principles of grammatical theory as developed by Joe Grimes in his book The Thread of Discourse to the Nepali language.

Allen, N. 1975. Sketch of Thulung grammar. Cornell University East Asia Papers 5. New York: Cornell University.

Aryal, I. and T. Dhungyal. 1970. A new history of Nepal. Kathmandu: Voice of Nepal.
This book covers in a succinct manner the entire known history of Nepal. It is written from a national's perspective.

Background notes. 1984. Nepal. United States Department of State, Bureau of Public Affairs.
The background notes provide a wealth of information on the people, geography, government, economy, foreign relations, etc.

Strahm, E. 1975. Clause patterns in Jirel. Nepal Studies in Linguistics 2:71-146.
The clause patterns of Jirel are given in terms of the tagmemic model. The article does this in very clear way. There is also a section for additional rules which is helpful. All in all, one of the best grammar write ups I've seen on a minority language of Nepal.

Strahm, E. 1978. Cohesion markers in Jirel narrative. Papers on Discourse, 51. 342-8. Dallas: SIL.
In Jirel narrative, cohesion markers link clauses but also introduce a point of departure for the sentence or pragraph they begin.

Toba, S. 1979. Khaling. Asia and African Grammatical Manual, no. 13d. Tokyo: Bupo Kydo Kenkyu Project, Asia Africa Gengo Bunka Kenkyuzyo.
This is a comprehensive description of Khaling. It includes the phonology but focuses on the grammar. A bibliography of the author's works on this language is given in the back.

Toba, S. 1983. A phonological reconstruction of Proto-northern Rai. Master's thesis presented at the University of Texas at Arlington, July 1983.
This work handles the historical comparative method using both structuralists' and generative models. Synchronic surveys of the phonology are given. Good bibliography. This thesis also provides a good example of how to apply the historical critical method to the minority languages of Nepal.

Toba, S. 1978. Participant focus is Khaling narrative. Papers on Discourse, 51, 157-62. Dallas, Tx.: SIL
The article gives the basic organization for narratives in Khaling and then goes on to dexcribe event oriented narratives and participant focused narratives.

Trail, R. 1973. Patterns in clause, part II.
This volume has the following articles on Nepal languages: Clause patterns in Dhangar-Kurux, Clause patterns in Maithili.

Trail, R. 1973. Patterns in clause, part IV, word lists.

This volume contains comparative word lists from ten languages, three of whch are from Nepal: Maithili, Tharu, and Dhangar-Kudux.

Trail, R. 1980. Person markers: finite conjunct and disjunct verb forms in Newari. Offprint from Pacific Linguistics, series A, no. 53. Canberra Australia.
This article is a problem-solving one which identifies three major patterns of finite conjunct and disjunct forms of Newari.

Troyer, L. 1974. Linguistics and development in Nepal. Contributions to Nepalese Studies 1.2: 107-118.
This is an excellent article on how important language is to Nepal. It also gives an overview of the work that has been done in Nepal by SIL and others.
